That's not how this works. Boulevard is required by law to send a T3 with every shipment.

Hi guys,

Thanks for shooting the supplier information over. What we need to know is what product / lot number came from which supplier on each Safe Chain purchase order. I'm more than happy to introduce you to a company that will handle all of the data entry but they will need this info as well. The chain of custody should look like this:

1: Manufacturer > 2: Authorized Distributor > 3: Wholesaler > 4: Pharmacy

There can be multiple wholesalers in the supply chain but each one is required to give the buyer the T3 information on their purchases. The people supplying Blvd should be providing this information with each order so that they can provide it to their customers. Make sense?

We have a customer that has requested a T3 so really need to get that one done ASAP. Please let me know what you need from us to get these rolling.

thanks i think dhruv and charlie spoke and came up with a solution.

T3's are a bit more involved than just an address. They are working through it thanks
